Hearings On Labor Jan. 23

Taft Announces; Goal to Have Some Legislation Ready About March 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Chairman Taft (R-Ohio) announced today that the Senate Labor committee will open a "consolidated hearing" on all pending labor proposals January 23. The goal is to have some legislation ready about March 1, he said.

Taft said this program was unanimously agreed upon at an organization meeting of the Senate Labor committee.

The Ohio senator told reporters the hearing will first touch upon the comprehensive labor bill offered jointly by Senators Taft, Ball (R-Minn) and Smith (R-NJ) and a proposal by Senator Murray (D-Mont) and eight other Democrats for an overall study of labor problems by a commission composed of congressmen and public representatives named by the president.

Then, Taft continued, the hearing will consider "all other bills and resolutions having the object of reducing industrial strife in the United States."

Bills Included

Taft said this would include:

1. All bills dealing with organization and responsibility of labor unions.
2. Proposals for labor courts and compulsory arbitration.
3. Proposals for mediation and conciliation.
4. Proposals regarding the closed shop and nationwide collective bargaining.
5. Bills amending the National Labor Relations Act.

Another Senate group got down to business today on one phase of labor legislation. A judiciary subcommittee headed by Senator Donnell (R-Mo), began hearings on portal-to-portal pay.

The first witness: Senator Capehart (R-Ind), author of a bill that would wipe out most of the $4,000,000,000 in law suits filed by unions for back pay to cover time spent in walking between plant gates and work benches.

Labor Secretary Preview

Yesterday, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach provided a preview—but only in part—of the testimony he will give whenever the Senate and House labor committees ask for his opinions.

At a news conference, Schwellenbach said:

He will cooperate with Congress in any efforts to minimize labor strife.

He won't go up to Capitol Hill just to "say no to everything."

But he most positively will oppose any bill to create a mediation board or any kind of board, either inside or outside of the Labor Department, to replace his U. S. Conciliation Service. He said this service has done a good job despite difficulties.

Penal Colonies Topic of Talk

The Sedalia Lions Club, today, had as the noon day luncheon speaker, Russel Peck, whose subject was "Penal Colonies of the Philippines". Peck, who was a captain in the army during the war and who saw service in the Pacific, was stationed in the Philippines for a time and had an opportunity to visit such places on which he spoke.

He told how they are used to educate the Philippine criminal, so that he can return to society. "The colonies are almost the opposite of those in our own country in handling of criminals. When they work, money obtained through their endeavors as a prisoner, is divided between the prisoner and the government, the prisoner getting a certain percent. This money is placed in a trust fund for him and when he has completed his term, it is turned over to him to either buy a farm, and make a business venture," he said.

"The treatment given the prisoner is such that it restores him to society as a good citizen," Peck concluded.

The meeting was then turned over to a general discussion of the subject with Mr. Peck answering numerous questions.

Father William P. Stack, presided over the meeting.

Propose Hike In State Motor Fuel Tax

For Improvement Of Rural Roads And City Streets

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 15—(AP)—Improving rural roads and city streets by increasing the state motor fuel tax from two to four cents a gallon was proposed today in a constitutional amendment resolution in the Missouri house of representatives.

Offered by Rep. Milton Duvall (D) of Pike county and others, the resolution would put the question to popular vote in the 1948 general election.

The money collected from the extra two cent gasoline tax would be placed in a special fund handled by the state highway commission. The commission would dole out the revenue on this basis:

Division of Fund

One-half to cities of 750 persons or more, according to their population, for construction and maintenance of streets;

One-half to counties for constructing and maintaining rural roads.

Counties would receive their portions partly on their population in comparison to the Missouri population and partly on the number of miles of county roads in each county in relation to total mileage in the state.

The bill would prohibit counties or cities from levying a special road and bridge tax.

During the first 11 months of 1946 the revenue from the present two cent gas tax totaled more than 14,000,000.

'No Surrender To Pretender,' States Arnall

Defiant Governor Of Georgia Rejects Rival's Claims

ATLANTA, Jan. 15—(AP)—Rival claimants to the governorship of Georgia established offices in the state capitol today and each immediately set up his own military department.

The claimants were Ellis Arnall, who has held the office for the past four years, and Herman Talmadge, who was named by the legislature early today to the office which his late father, Eugene Talmadge, won in last November's general election. The elder Talmadge died last month.

By Romney Wheeler

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 15—(AP)—Defiant Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia held his office against a yelling mob early today, after rejecting claims of a rival governor, Herman Talmadge, whom the legislature elected in a tumultuous, post-midnight session.

Arnall was escorted from the capitol unhurt by National Guard officers and close associates, who barricaded the doors of the executive chamber to save him from violence.

In a brief, dramatic encounter, Arnall told the youthful son of the late Eugene Talmadge: "I cannot surrender to a pretender."

Talmadge, escorted by a committee of 25 legislators and followed by whooping, surging followers, pushed into Arnall's office at 2:15 a. m. (EST). It was a quarter-hour after the legislature had named him to the four-year term which his father, Eugene Talmadge, didn't live to serve.

"I presume," he said, "that you have been informed that I have been elected as governor by the General Assembly of Georgia."

Refuses to Yield

Replied Arnall: "I understand the general assembly allegedly has elected you, but the general assembly cannot elect a governor. Accordingly, I respectfully but firmly refuse to yield the office to you, whom I consider a pretender."

After a brief exchange, Talmadge demanded: "Do you defy the committee and the General Assembly of Georgia?"

"I do not," replied Arnall, sharply. "But I uphold the law. I cannot surrender to a pretender."

Talmadge turned to reporters, saying aside, "I hope the press gets this." Then he addressed Arnall: "I hope you will not continue to thwart not only the people but the express direction of the general assembly. It is not my intention as chief executive to create a scene or disorder. I intend to set up offices at such places as are available, and conduct the office of governor."

Returned Arnall: "I likewise accede to that same position, and will continue to serve as governor of Georgia."

"We'll see," said Talmadge, turning on his heel.

"You were nice to come in," said Arnall pleasantly to Talmadge's back.

Words, Then Fist Fight

As Talmadge pushed through the crowd outside, a group sought to force its way into the executive office, but was blocked by P. T. McCutcheon, Arnall's executive secretary. An exchange of words led almost immediately to a fist-fight, which milled for two minutes in the governor's reception room. McCutcheon retreated into Arnall's private office, and barred the heavy door against the mob.

Arnall, surrounded by reporters and a few close associates, refused to let anyone depart until National Guard officers and Talmadge leaders had cleared the outer chamber.

Talmadge had been sworn in shortly after 2 a. m. (EST) before a cheering legislature and a whooping, stomping gallery of Talmadge faithful who had sat throughout the day watching the canvas of general election returns. He was elected, after a series of decisive roll-calls, by 161 to 87.

When Talmadge declared he would sign any bill setting up machinery for a special election, and would be a candidate for governor, he was interrupted by yells of "whatta man!"

"If I am defeated," Talmadge shouted into the microphone, "I will resign immediately."

Lieut. Gov.-elect M. E. Thompson, who cannot take office until his election is certified by the legislature later today, said he would fight for the right to serve as acting governor. "I shall insist," he said, "that the will of the people as expressed under the constitution, be not thwarted."

Communists Changed AVC

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., national housing chairman of the American veterans committee, says that Communists have moved into the AVC and changed it from "a flowering, inspiring group of young Americans interested in the nation's welfare" into an organization "tattered and torn and factionalized."

"We are now bewildered and confused by the lies and tactics thrown at us by people who would not admit they were Commies but who at every turn of the road hewed to the Daily Worker (Communist newspaper) line," he declared at a meeting yesterday.

The AVC now numbers between 75,000 and 80,000 members and has stopped growing. He said in addressing the women's division of Friends of Democracy, Inc. "The people of America have lost faith in us because we are Commie-infiltrated."

Then he added: "We must decide—what now?"

Magistrate Court System Must Have Kinks Straightened Out

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—(AP)—New legislation appeared in the offing today to straighten out some kinks in Missouri's recently inaugurated magistrate court system.

Magistrates succeeded the justice of peace of the horse and buggy days in most counties January 1.

Yesterday the senate judiciary committee took a look at the new system and decided to set up a special subcommittee to study necessary changes.

Sen. R. Jasper Smith (R) of Springfield, chairman of the judiciary committee which wrote the new magistrate court laws last session is judiciary chairman again this year. He said complaints had been voiced about the provisions for magistrates' clerks and the lack of a method for selecting magistrate court juries.

"The question is," he explained "whether we're just going to go out on the street and pick up a jury like some of the justices used to do, or whether a definite procedure should be established."

Problems also have arisen over litigation that was pending when the old J. P. system died.

While the senate forged ahead on regular business yesterday, house Republican leaders scheduled a caucus for today to determine whether the house should recess until Feb. 3, when the governor's budget recommendations are expected to be ready.

House Democrats decided yesterday to set up a special committee to ma pout their minority party legislative program.

Many Were Sick on The Liner Gripsholm

NEW YORK, Jan. 15— (AP) — There's plenty of grub left over in the galleys aboard the Swedish liner Gripsholm, if the number of seasickness pills consumed during its stormy 11-day crossing from Gotesburg is any sign.

Dr. Hans Ribbing, the ship's chief physician, said yesterday at the vessel's arrival, that 10,000 pills were handed out during the trip. Five hundred of the 1,248 passengers approached sick bay in a single day during the height of the storm which has plagued North Atlantic shipping, he said.

Discussion of Tax on Retail Sales Here

Proposal For A $1 Tax On Each $1,000 In Receipts

Retail merchants of Sedalia, about seventy-five in number, attended a business meeting at the Ambassador Room of the Hotel Bothwell Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, to hear a report of the Chamber of Commerce Tax Committee, and to make their suggestions for a fair and equitable tax for all such businesses in Sedalia.

M. D. Weathers, Chamber of Commerce director, presided over the meeting and introduced George Lockett, chairman of the retail committee, who introduced suggested plans to be submitted to the City Council, which is expected soon to enact a new merchants occupational license tax ordinance.

The Chamber committee has been studying this tax problem for nearly three years during which time two different ordinances have been considered by the city. The tax now stands as a $40 flat rate for most Sedalia businesses.

Various Plans Suggested

The City Council has stated the city needs an additional $10,000.

Different plans were suggested at this meeting. The main plans were, first, to increase the old city tax by 50%, thereby raising the needed $10,000. The second plan was a system by which a tax rate of $1.00 for each $1,000 worth of gross retail and service business is levied on the retail businesses, with a minimum of $25 and a maximum of $300, with a sworn statement as to the amount of business and it would not be required that anyone check their books. This last plan was met with almost unanimous approval. The first plan was discussed and what was described as the unfairness to the small business man was brought forth.

Members of the City Council are currently studying a Maplewood, Missouri, ordinance which provides for a tax rate of $1.00 for each $1,000 worth of gross retail and service business.

Mr. Lockett will submit the plan generally approved by the retail merchants to members of the City Council on Friday, January 17, at a caucus meeting.

Sheriff Asks Men to Leave Factory Site

Where Union Had Attempted to Organize Women

BRUCETON, Tenn., Jan. 15—(AP)—Carroll County Sheriff I. D. Lewis dispersed today an amicable crowd of 75 men who accompanied their women-folk to the Siegel shirt factory here without incident or the appearance of CIO union pickets who have been attempting to organize the factory workers.

"Everything is under control," the sheriff told the men as they huddled about him in a driving rain. "We have nine deputies here and will deputize more men if necessary."

"Your presence here only aggravates the situation," the sheriff said, asking the escorts to leave. The sheriff shook hands with the men who explained:

"All we want to do, sheriff, is protect our women."

The crowd then dispersed.

No representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America were present as the factory began its day operations at 7 a. m.

Organizers Did Not Return

The two ACWA organizers, Miss Eula McGill of Birmingham and Miss Mary Morgan of Knoxville, who were asked to quit Bruceton by a band of fathers and husbands of Siegel workers, did not return from Huntingdon, Tenn, where they went yesterday for a union meeting.

"We just want you to leave town," the women were told by Floyd Lindel Cole, a farmer who became spokesman for the men whose tempers were aroused by a clash between pickets and workers at the plant on Monday morning.

A union official at Dickson, Ed Clair, said the women were forced to leave by "a gang of thugs with guns" and added that the union would prosecute "to the fullest" those who were responsible.

CIO Will Not Give Up

The Henry I. Siegel plant here, employing about 500 persons, most of them women, was the scene of an NLRB election last November when a majority of the workers rejected union representation for collective bargaining. Another Siegel plant, located at nearby Dickson, Tenn., was closed after a strike called by Amalgamated last December.

The last word from Miss McGill was that her union now claims a majority of the Siegel workers here and that "the CIO will continue its efforts to organize the plant."

The factory became a trouble spot on Monday when workers and pickets clashed and a score of women and three men were arrested on assault and battery charges. Hearings in magistrate court will be held Saturday.

Light Snowfall In Nebraska

By The Associated Press

Colder weather moved in on the Great Lakes region and northern plains states overnight, and temperatures today were quite chilly, especially in the northern sections.

Low readings included 10 below at Williston and Dickinson, N. D., and temperatures in northern Minnesota were below zero. Yesterday's blizzard in that area had moved northward, and although some snow was reported, gale winds had diminished.

Rain was falling this morning along the slope of the Appalachians from northern Georgia through New England, with some thunderstorms occurring. Light snow fell in Nebraska and southwestern Iowa. Weather in the gulf states continued cloudy and quite mild.

Markedly colder weather had overspread the Rocky Mountain area generally, with Ely, Nev., reporting a low of 20 below zero. Butte, Mont., had a frigid minimum of 34 below last night.

Temperatures over California were freezing or below, except along the coast.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—President Truman emptied his pockets of dimes today and his 23-year-old daughter, Margaret used them to open the "March O Dimes," nation-wide money drive for the infantile paralysis fund.

Some dimes went "on the line" — grooves in a gaily decorated stand in front of the Capitol Theater, a few blocks from the White House. The hope is to collect a "mile of dimes." (89,872).

She dropped others into a milk bottle, marked "Missouri."

Doesn't Want Burned Crosses

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—President Truman spoke out today against "burned crosses" and men who "worked behind sheets" in his own home state of Missouri in asserting that "I don't want to see any race discrimination."

Charging his new Civil Rights committee with responsibility for finding means for strengthening protection of minorities, the president said the country could very easily be faced with a situation like one he recalled in 1922 when he was running for his first elective office—county judge of Jackson county, Missouri.

There was an organization in that county, he said, "that met on hills and burned the crosses and worked behind sheets."

Mr. Truman added:

Tendency Again

"There is a tendency in this country for that situation to develop again, unless we do something tangible to prevent it.

"I don't want to see any race discrimination. I don't want to see any religious bigotry break out in this country as I did then."

The president named no organization by name today in referring to burned crosses and white sheets. However, his statement recalled his previous criticism of the Ku Klux Klan, some of whose members have used the burning cross and the white robe in public demonstrations.

During his 1944 vice-presidential campaign, Mr. Truman made heated denials when political opponents attempted to link him with the klan. At that time he declared that he had fought the organization in Missouri.

UMW Case Up To Jurists

Complete Three Hours of Arguments, May be Weeks Before Decision Announced

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 — (AP) — The nine highest jurists in this country today set about deciding whether the government had any legal right to hale John L. Lewis into court last November as a strike breaking gesture.

It may be weeks before the supreme court announces its findings, but the justices themselves may know by Saturday what the answer will be, along with the one to this second question:

Will Lewis and his AFL United Mine Workers have to pay all or any of the $3,510,000 in fines assessed against them for contempt of court?

Saturday is the day of the next regular conference of the nine justices. If each has made up his mind by then, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson will assign one of them to write the court's opinion.

That task usually requires several weeks.

The court's next opinion day is Monday, but another will not be due until February 3. That is the earliest date a decision appears possible.

Three Hours of Argument

The tribunal wound up three hours of argument on the historic case late yesterday.

The only incident during the long and tense court room drama came less than five minutes before the end.

Justice Frankfurter was leading Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett through a series of questions and answers about the legislative history of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act, under which the government seized the soft coal pits last spring.

Finally, when the white signal went on, indicating that only five minutes of the attorney's allotted time remained, Justice Jackson interrupted to tell Sonnett he thought the lawyer ought to take another point in his argument.

"You better get on it and not devote any further time to the psychoanalyzing of members of congress, because your light is on," Jackson said.

Drops Documents

"I'm not saying it was your fault," the Justice continued with a smile. "You were led into it by the court, which has likewise found itself spending much of its time in psychoanalysis of congress.

As Sonnett replied with "I'll be more than happy to obey, Your Honor," Frankfurter wheeled in his high-backed chair.

He had grabbed a stack of documents from the bench, and as he turned he dropped them to the floor.

They fell with a thud, sending a page scurrying to pick them up.

Sonnett went on with his argument only a moment. Then the red light beside the white one flashed on. His time was up, and the case was ended.

The point Jackson suggested that Sonnett pursue was what would happen if the court lacked jurisdiction to issue an injunction in a case like the coal dispute.

P. I. Volcano Erupts Again

MANILA, Jan. 15—(AP)—Mayon volcano erupted violently again today.

A U. S. Navy pilot, flying a mile away, said Mayon threw smoke and ashes 20,000 feet into Southern Luzon skies.

Mayon's huge peak was almost entirely obscured by dense smoke rising from lava flowing down the mountain's slopes in scores of molten streams.

The pilot's report, released through the Philippine government, said there was no immediate danger from the lava.

However, a correspondent for the Manila Evening News wrote "the crator of the volcano, which is just a small hole in the side of the summit, may blow up at any moment."

Unconfirmed press reports said inhabitants of Libog, a town of 5,000 menaced by the lava, had been evacuated.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—Unlike many other resignations, the real reason for Secretary of State Byrne's resignation was just what the official announcement said—his health. There was, however, backstage drama behind the sudden announcement January 6, instead of waiting until January 10 as planned.

Late in the afternoon of January 6, Byrnes got a call from a newsman clearly indicating that he knew the resignation was imminent. Hurrying over to the White House, the secretary of state told President Truman of the phone call and asked him how the story could have leaked.

"I didn't tell a soul except Bill Hassett," Truman replied, referring to one of his White House secretaries.

"But Admiral Leahy knew it," corrected Byrnes, "because he mentioned it to me."

"Oh, yes," admitted the president, "Admiral Leahy knew."

It was then decided to issue an immediate press release in order to "scoop" the newsman, and the president called in press secretary Charlie Ross. Whereupon it developed that he had also told Charlie Ross about the impending Byrnes resignation.

Thus, although the president apparently didn't realize it, he had told at least three people about Byrne's plan to resign. And when more than two people know a thing in Washington, it isn't a secret.

Note — Mrs. Byrnes was a little miffed because she got the news of her husband's retirement from newspapermen who phoned her. She had known that her husband was going to resign later in the week, but she didn't know about the rush announcement.

CIO Okays Truman

When newsmen asked CIO boss Phil Murray for his views on the president's proposed curbs on jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts, he replied with a flat "No comment." However, Murray had plenty to say in a confidential chat with his friend and namesake, Senator Jim Murray of Montana, Democratic ex-chairman of the senate labor committee.

The CIO leder not only endorsed legislation to prevent jurisdictional tieups and secondary boycotts, but other Truman proposals.

"The message was fair and public-spirited," the CIO chief told Senator Murray. "Labor can have no quarrel with it."

Some years ago, he set up a committee within the CIO which had been highly successful in dealing with jurisdictional union problems, CIO's Murray told Montana's Murray.

"As a result," he said, "we have little or no trouble with jurisdictional disputes within the CIO today."

He admitted that there is still considerable jurisdictional strife between the CIO and the AFL, which might be remedied by congressional action.

"On several occasions in the past, I have recommended to Bill Green (AFL president) that a joint CIO-AFL committee be set up to iron out our factional disputes in various industries. We of the CIO realized that something would have to be done and we hoped that labor itself would take the initiative."

Green promised to "think it over," the CIO leader said, but nothing further was heard from him.

Van's New Limousine

The new senate is getting obvious pleasure out of watching Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan in his new job as president pro tem of the senate. Part of this is because of Vandenberg's unconcealed happiness in the job, part because many never did relish Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee in the president's chair.

New Hampshire's Senator Charles Tobey, however, could not resist putting Vandenberg on the spot. Talking with a group of GOP colleagues in the senate restaurant, Tobey mentioned the long, sleek limousine, with liveried chauffeur, which goes to Vandenberg along with his new job.

"Now, we of the Republican party are pledged to the maintenance and extension of American democracy," said Tobey, looking at Vandenberg. "I wonder if the president of the senate would not agree that it is up to us to demonstrate our fundamental belief in that democracy wherever possible.

"As a gesture of democracy, therefore," continued Tobey, "let me propose to the president of the senate that he practice real democracy in the use of his new limousine. There are 51 Republican senators and 52 weeks in the year. Would it not be a true democratic gesture to assign the limousine to each senator for one week of the year, with the president of the senate himself to have its use for two weeks?"

Vandenberg grinned. Somebody came to his rescue by changing the subject.

Democratic Committee Haggling

Not much has been said about Democratic wire pulling in assigning members to senate committees, but it has been just as hot a subject behind closed doors as the assignment of Republicans.

By adopting a rule that assignments go on the basis of seniority in the senate, rather than length of membership on the committees themselves, the Democrats were able to bar certain Liberals of long experience from certain key committees.

Outstanding example was the assignment of Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico to the foreign relations committee, after only one year's experience while Senators Claude Pepper of Florida and Theodore Green of Rhode Island, far more experienced, have served on the committee for eight years.

How Bilbo Stepped Aside

It was Senator Theodore Bilbo himself, working through kindly Senator Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who arranged the 60-day vacation moratorium on his fight for a senate seat.

Convinced that he did not have a chance to win his battle during the opening days of congress, Bilbo went to Senator Hoey. Telling the silver-haired Tarheel that he knew himself to be licked, Bilbo continued, his voice choked with emotion:

"But I am flat broke and if they kick me out now, I won't even have railroad fare back to Mississippi.

"Now I have looked up the law and if I will step aside for two or three months I can draw my pay and have enough to cover my hospital bills for a second operation on my mouth."

Hoey told Bilbo he doubted that pay could be drawn without first being sworn in, but agreed to get in touch with Democratic leader Barkley. It was found that Bilbo's interpretation was correct.

Barkley and Hoey then went to GOP leader Taft who called Senators Wallace White, Jr., of Maine and Eugene Millikin of Colorado to his office. Taft and White were for immediate acceptance but Millikin balked, insisting that Bilbo be barred "now and for all time."

The two Democrats pointed out that, even with a revision of the cloture rules, something which itself might precipitate a filibuster, it might take as long as 30 days to oust "The Man."

So, after about 40 minutes of discussion, Colorado's Millikin agreed that if Dr. George W. Calver, capitol physician, would give it as his professional opinion that Bilbo was genuinely in need of an operation, he, Millikin, would "go along."

That was how the deal was arranged.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Credit To Italy To Get Food

Hundred Million Promised By U. S. To Stave Off Famine and Riots

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The United States promised Italy $100,000,000 in credits Tuesday for a long-haul revival of industry, and took emergency action to get 50,000 tons of wheat into the country to stave off famine and food riots.

Both moves were disclosed as Italian Premier Alcide De Gasperi waited at the airport for the weather to clear so he could fly home after a successful 10-day mission to the United States. Later the flight was cancelled on account of thick weather, and reset to start at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

The credit was provided in an unexpected announcement from the Export-Import bank that it had decided to earmark $100,000,000 "to restore and expand specific segments of Italian industry."

The wheat is aboard six American ships which set out for occupied Germany with relief supplies. Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Peterson announced that they were diverted in response to an emergency requests from the state department last Friday for quick help for UNRRA in Italy.

Ships Change Couse

Radio messages were sent by the war department the same night ordering the ships to change course and head for Italian ports instead of their original destination, Bremen.

One ship will dock at Palermo, two at Naples, two at Genoa and one at Bari. The first ship is due at Genoa Monday.

The rerouting of the ships was ordered after a check of records showed food stocks in the American zone of Germany will, with other shipments en route, be sufficient for pressing needs until UNRRA can return six shiploads later this month.

The Export-Import bank said that eventual extension of the actual credits "will depend in each instance upon conditions in Italy of stability and upon its ability to provide for other imports essential to the maintenance of its economy."

In effect the bank, which heretofore had steadfastly opposed the credit in fear it would not be repaid, compromised with state department officials who had vigorously championed a loan. While not granting an outright loan, the bank's directors committed themselves to set aside this amount for chosen Italian industries.

Government officials said the money probably will be used by concerns turning out cotton textiles, chemicals, automobiles, iron and steel, tobacco and merchant ships. The credit will go for raw materials badly needed by these industries, which have a recognized export market in which to obtain the foreign exchange needed to repay the credit.

The Export-Import bank reportedly agreed to this plan at a meeting of top administration strategists last night.

The credit, plus additional assurances of economic aid, were the main aims of De Gasperi's trip. The promise undoubtedly strengthened his position in the Italian coalition government, now threatened with a crisis by a split in the socialist party.

Elect Officers And Vestrymen

The Calvary Episcopal church held its annual parish dinner and meeting Tuesday night. Officers and vestrymen were elected and church business discussed.

The dinner, which was served in parish hall, began at 6 o'clock and immediately after the group went to the church where the meeting was held.

The officers and vestrymen elected were: Charles Hanna, senior warden; D. G. Tuggle, junior warden; R. M. Overstreet, treasurer, and Percy Metcalf, secretary. James M. Pelot, J. T. Bentley, W. T. Gibbs, George Dugan, Sr., and Kenneth Middleton were elected vestrymen.

Three honorary vestrymen were also elected. They were, George H. Trader, Victor Winnberg and Dr. John B. Carlisle.

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary served the turkey dinner. Reports on the progress of the different organizations were given as well as on church work during the year.

Bill To End Sugar Ration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Rep. Morrow (R-NH) Tuesday introduced a bill to end rationing and price controls on sugar, and to create a commission to allocate the country's supplies.

Rationing and price controls would be abolished at once. A seven-member commission would distribute sugar now owned by the government, and exports would be curbed in accordance with domestic needs.

Rep. August H. Andresen (R-Minn) told the House that the potential 1947 sugar supply is probably sufficient to permit an increase of 15 pounds for each person in the United States.

Andresen, appointed by chairman Hope (R-Kas) of the House agriculture committee to head a seven man subcommittee to investigate food shortages, also told the House that industrial users of sugar should be given a 25 percent boost for 1947 compared with 1946.

One and one-half pounds of peanuts in the shell will make about one pound of kernels.

Fractures To Two Young Students

Two grade school children were injured Tuesday, one suffering a broken arm and the other a fractured wrist while playing at school. The first was Charlotte Ann Houston, 911 South Ohio avenue, and the other Gerold Whitfield, of Dresden.

Charlotte Ann at Broadway school was playing with classmates during the noon hour, in a certain game attempted to tag the school wall, which served as "base" for the group. In doing this she ran into the brick wall with both arms outstretched causing a fracture of the right arm at the elbow.

She was taken to the Bothwell hospital where the arm was put in a traction. Dr. D. R .Edwards, attending physician, said that the nine year old fourth grader would probably have to remain at the hospital for several weeks.

Gerald Whitfield received a fractured wrist while playing in the school yard at the La Monte school. He was brought to the Bothwell hospital by his mother, and Dr. Edwards put a cast on his arm and dismissed him. Gerald is about twelve years old.

Rome Naval Veterans Suggest Scuttling Ships

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Rome naval veterans are suggesting that Italian sailors scuttle their ships rather than surrender them to the World War II victors under the proposed peace treaty.

It is a threat of which Allied authorities in Italy have been aware for some time, and has resulted in strict secrecy regarding Allied agreements as to who will get the warships as reparations.

Although Frank O'Brien, Associated Press correspondent in Rome, says authorities will not talk openly on the subject, it is understood that France, Soviet Russia, and probably Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania will be on the receiving end.

Commander Ernesto Giuriati of the Italian navy said in New York after the foreign ministers conference that Italy stood to lose 200,000 of her 350,000 tons of warships, and would be reduced to two old battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers, 16 torpedo boats and 20 corvettes, with no submarines. This means that three battleships, five cruisers, seven destroyers, and 37 submarines are to go to other countries, together with a large number of auxiliary vessels.

Authorities Nervous

O'Brien reports, however, that Allied authorities, although they hold the units under surveillance, are frankly nervous over their ability to deliver. The crews, not the Italian government, are suspected, although the government had asked for permission to scrap vessels which it would not be permitted to keep rather than have them turned over to other Mediterranean powers. The government also has cited Italian naval co-operation with the Allies in the last months of the war, and tried to maintain that the fleet had not actually surrendered, but changed over to the Allied side under a "gentlemen's agreement."

All of this seems to have been merely a grasping at straws, however, without any real hope of changing the Allied decision. The government probably will be held strictly responsible if it fails to control any fire-eaters in the fleet. Italy's preferred position among the former Axis powers has been due all along to her willingness to carry out Allied instructions. She is years ahead of Germany and Japan in rehabilitation, and has been the recipient of much kind treatment such as $100,000,000 Export-Import credits.

Allies Informed

The Rome pronouncement by the naval veterans, taking the form of an "order of the day," serves to put the government on notice, however, and the Allies will know where to place the blame for any overt act which might now occur.

Germany was forced to pay heavily in additional tonnage for the vessels her crewmen scuttled in Scapa Flow after World War I. Italy, heavily dependent on support from those she fought against during the war, has everything to lose by bucking too hard against Allied decisions which have been, from several standpoints, very lenient.

Wheat Closed Lower

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—(AP)—Grains eased for small fractional losses on the Board of Trade today. Profit-taking entering the pits after the preceding session's bulge was the major reason for the decline.

Some support was given wheat by flour mill buying during the early part of the session. Later selling by houses with southwestern connections expanded. England was reported inquiring for flour for February shipment.

January corn showed relative firmness when compared with other deliveries of that grain.

Oats trading followed the leadership of other grains.

Wheat closed ¼ to ⅞ cent lower, January $2.18½, corn was ¼ cent lower to ½ cent higher, January $1.32⅜ to $1.32½, and oats ⅛ to ¾ cent lower, March 77c to 77⅛c.

Retreat On Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The stock market beat a slow retreat today although leaders failed to break out of a narrow range.

Dealings were quiet from the start. Improvement registered by selected industrials was largely wiped out in the final hour. Rails operated in lower ground most of the day. While a few favorites were resistant, declines of fractions to more than a point were numerous near the close. Transactions approximated 800,000 shares.

Call Meeting Of War Dads

An important special meeting to which the public is invited has been called by the Pettis County Chapter, No. 31, American War Dads and auxiliary, to be held Saturday, January 18, at 8 p. m., at the county court room in the court house. Ex-service men and women are particularly asked to attend.

Several outstanding local speakers will address the group on issues which are of interest at the present time, among them being, immigration, GI Bill of Rights, labor question and housing situation.

Of particular interest is the immigration issue which is now before Congress to grant citizenship to 88 German scientists who were under Hitler and are now imparting their knowledge to army aviation experts in this country. There is also a proposal to admit 100,000 aliens to the United States.

These problems will be discussed at this meeting.

Direct Girls To Don Suits

DETROIT, Jan. 15—(AP)—Young girls of the Liberty school in Highland park were directed today to don their swim suits before they go near the waters of the swimming pool.

Superintendent of Schools H. L. Shibler said the mandate was in deference to a group of mothers who protested to the board of education Tuesday night that their daughters were bathing nude in the school pool.

The 150 girls at the school range in age from nine to 13.

Dr. Shibler said nude bathing will continue among approximately 200 other girls in two other elementary schools.

Boys in the schools have not worn suits for years, Dr. Shibler said, adding, however, that the girls were segregated during gym classes and are directed by women instructors. He said there was no encroachment on their privacy.

Mrs. Leo Wessinger, mother of a 13-year-old daughter, told the board:

"Personally I see no reason for girls at these schools going swimming in the nude. It is just going to lower their moral standard and get them off on the wrong foot."

Arriving at Goal Thursday

By Alton L. Blakeslee

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MT. OLYMPUS IN THE ROSS SEA, Jan. 14 — (Delayed) — (AP) — The navy's south polar expedition expects to reach Little America tomorrow—if it still exists.

Little America, the expedition's goal, was base of a previous antarctic expedition headed by Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

First task of the expedition on reaching little America will be to build an airstrip on the ice to receive planes being brought down by the carrier Philippine Sea.

Admiral Cruzen said he plans to scout over the Bay of Whales and the Little America site upon arrival and to send a five man landing party shore on skis.

If Byrd's old camp site is found suitable, unloading will be started at once and seabees then will begin the airstrip.

It is possible, of course, that Little America might have gone to sea on an ice berg or be inaccessible among the ice jumbled upward by colliding glaciers. If the old base is unsuitable, the expedition must go elsewhere.

Dog Tale

"Old Red," champion coyote dog of Ellis county, Texas, is highly embarrassed these days, according to Gay Tillotson, his owner, above, of Hays, Kansas. Chasing a coyote in sub-zero weather, Red broke his tail on a barbed wire fence, broke a toe on frozen clods. The tail is in a splint and Red is unhappy. The six-year-old greyhound killed 26 coyotes last November, totalled 61 in 1946. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Major in Japan Dies a Hero

SENDAI, Japan, Jan. 15—(AP)—Maj. Morris Anderson, Baton Rouge, La., paratroop veteran of the Battle of the Bulge and of the Rhine, died a hero's death Thursday in an attempt to rouse occupants of blazing bachelor officers quarters at nearby Camp Schimmelpfennig.

Capt. Karl W. Niemann, Muskogee, Okla., and George E. Foreman, Pawtucket, R. I., died of injuries received in the fire that in 30 minutes destroyed the two story building.

Lt. Bernard F. King, Aberdeen, Wash., was injured but not critically.

The army announced the casualties today.

An officer said he last saw Anderson running through a smoke filled hall of the building to rouse occupants. A few minutes later a wing of the building collapsed, burying Anderson under a flaming mass of wood and plaster.

Anderson was the son of the late Louisiana state senator, J. L. Anderson. He was awarded the Silver Star and Purple Heart and an oak leaf cluster for each in the war. He is survived by his widow and two daughters in Baton Rouge.

Foreman is survived by his widow and two children.

Not So Lovely

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Ann Elliott, 27, told Circuit Judge Leonard C. Reid that her husband, Fred, 36, fell in love at the slightest provocation. For that reason, she said, she filed a separate maintenance suit in the hope that he would stop.

Elliott told the court that his present girl friend was "the real thing—I think."

"Halting love is a tough proposition," Judge Reid said. "But in this particular case I can put a pretty high hurdle in its path." He ordered Elliott to pay $35 of his $65 weekly earnings for support of Mrs. Elliott and their one year old daughter.

Ask Rehearing In Risk Case

Petition To High Court To Reduce Fines Imposed

JEFFERSON CITY, Ma., Jan. 15—(AP)—Both the Attorney General of Missouri and 122 fire insurance companies petitioned the state supreme court Tuesday for a rehearing of high court's finding that the companies conspired to bribe the late T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City political leader, and R. E. O'Malley, former state insurance superintendent.

The risk firms, fined a total of $2,090,000 by the court last Dec. 30, contended the court's 105-page ruling did not show that O'Malley was to receive or actually got any money to settle rate litigation and therefore could not prove its assertion that "every esesntial element of the crime of bribery has been established. x x x"

The companies asked the court to "reduce the amount of the respective fines to an amount consistent with all the facts."

The court fined the companies from $10,000 to $132,000 each, basing the amount on a formula making the fines approximately four times the amounts paid by each company into the settlement fund.

Nor did the court prove, the companies' petition said, that the subscribers' actuarial committee was authorized to settle rate litigation pending in the thirties.

Exception Taken

The risk firms also took exception to the court's conclusion that the companies were attempting to defraud policy holders. "In making such findings the court failed to consider the fact that it is undisputed that the reports of the special master in the federal court cases were favorable to the companies x x x," they said.

Attorney General J. E. Taylor asked for a rehearing only of the section of the ruling dealing with alleged violation of the state anti-trust and rating statutes. The court held that the companies had not violated the state laws in that regard and thus their franchises to continue business in the state need not be forfeited.

The state's motion for rehearing contended the decision of the court "is in direct conflict with the express statutes of the state of Missouri."

As an alternative to their petition, the companies asked the high court to make certain deletions in the ruling which tended to hold the companies responsible for the acts of bribery. They contended earlier that officials of the companies had not known a special fund was being used to pay Pendergast and O'Malley.

Present Boom Doesn't Excite An Old Timer

Can't Understand Sliding Down Hill on Slats Just for Fun

By Hal Doyle

ASPEN, Colo., Jan. 15—(AP)—They can't make old Harry Brown's pulse beat any faster over the new bonanza this rebuilt mining community expects to find in the pocketbooks of winter ski enthusiasts.

He was here sixty years ago during the great Colorado silver boom and he finds the present snow boom pretty tame in comparison.

"This doesn't excite me at all," said the mining veteran who attributes his cheerful health at 78 to a judicious mixture of one part bourbon whisky and three parts branch water.

Harry is the last survivor of seven Brown brothers who came here during the 1880's from New Brunswick and found fortune in the metal-rich crags that rise above Fork River.

Declined During "Nineties"

From a "bang-bang" town of 12,000 people Aspen declined rapidly during the 'nineties' after silver dropped from 85 cents an ounce to 43 cents. The miners took their tools and went to Cripple Creek to hunt gold, leaving behind them empty frame houses and tales of fabulous spending.

Aspen dwindled until it was down to a population of 400—one fourth of them elderly citizens on state pension — and the Brown family was paying one-third of the town taxes.

Expenditure of a million dollars by outside capitalists to build Aspen into the winter sports capital of the Rockies has tripled the town's inhabitants and has brought an influx of skiers wearing colorful garb that rings louder in the frosty hills than ever did the miners' picks.

Possibilities

Brown thinks the "snow boom" has possibilities but he can't quite understand why grown men and women want to slide down a hill on slats for fun.

"Folks used skis when I was young only because they had to," he said.

But he was quite willing to lease the surface of a patch of 350 acres he owns on Aspen mountain to the newcomers, and if they want to pay to break their arms, legs and necks in the snow—well, he doesn't want to interfere in anybody's idea of pleasure.

But Brown has retained his mining rights. Like other oldtimers he has never given up hope that the old boom days of lead, zinc and silver would return.

Mountain People Glad

"The mountain people are glad to see this snow business get going," he said. "Although they are pretty indifferent about it. But if they ever open the mines again—then you'll see something.

"It's not wide open here now as it was when I came. There were two railroads building in, and we had forty to fifty six-horse teams hauling ore.

"The town had thirty saloons and six churches. At least half the saloons operated gambling games—faro bank and chuckaluck.

"One rancher dropped $2500 trying to win enough to take a few friends to dinner. Never complained much either."

Today the only open gambling is by nickel to quarter slot machines installed to help skiing visitors donate their small change to Aspen's civic betterment.

"Doggone, I used to like to play faro bank," grumbled Brown "but these slot machines are terrible. That isn't gambling — it's robbery."

Bell Not in Vehicle Unit

Secretary of State Wilson Bell has had no connection with the State Motor Vehicle department since July 1, 1946, when it was transferred from the office of the secretary of state to the newly created state department of revenue. Mr. Bell reports, however, that he is still receiving countless letters daily applying for automobile license plates, requesting reserve numbers, or information relative to motor vehicles.

Secretary Bell urges all firms or individuals who desire any information regarding motor vehicles, or who wish to purchase licenses, secure reserve numbers, drivers' licenses, titles, etc., to address their communications direct to the motor vehicle unit of the state department of revenue, Jefferson City, Missouri.

"I believe that considerable delay could be avoided by writing direct to Hinkle Statler, who is now supervisor of the motor vehicle unit, division of collection, department of revenue. This will assure more prompt and satisfactory service for all Missourians," commented Secretary Bell.

KIDNEYS GETTING YOU UP NIGHTS?

● If you get up nights—have frequent desire to pass your water—but have only scanty passages—yes, and have backache due to excess acidity in the urine, be glad you're reading this:

Three generations ago Dr. Kilmer, a famous doctor, found hundreds of his patients with this trouble. Painstakingly he made a medicine of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, balsams—Nature's own way to relief. He called it "Swamp-Root" and millions of grateful men and women have taken it—often with amazing results.

Swamp-Root goes right to work to flush out kidneys...increases the flow of urine, helping to relieve excess acidity...so the irritated bladder gets a good flushing out, too. Many report getting a good night's sleep after the first few doses. Caution: take as directed.

For free trial supply, send to Dept. S, Kilmer & Co., Inc., Box 1255, Stamford, Conn. Or—get full-sized bottle of Swamp-Root today at your drugstore.

12 Decisions That Shaped the Nation:

Fundamentals of Clermont Case Underlie Conviction on Which Lewis Faces Court

The Story of the Supreme Court

The nation gets the news of another major labor decision: News telegraphers tap out the story of the Supreme Court's action upholding the Wagner Labor Relations Act in April, 1937.

The Clermont in 1810: Not the first steamboat, but it touched off the Supreme Court decision against state monopolies.

By S. BURTON HEATH
NEA Staff Correspondent

It was a glorious day for New York, that August day in 1807 when Robert Fulton's new steamboat, the Clermont, made its first spectacular run on the Hudson river inaugurating a regular service to the state capital, Albany, and opening the door to the fast transatlantic service we now accept as commonplace.

The Clermont was not the first steamboat. But it was the first steam-propelled craft that ever got into regular commercial operation. And ambitious little New York, very trade-minded, envisioned great things from this vessel that could defy winds and tides, and go where it would, when it would.

The Clermont would have earned a big place in history simply as the forerunner of the modern superliners that now tie the world into unity. It played a bigger part in the unification of the United States, through one of the greatest judicial decisions of all times. The fundamental philosophy expounded in that case, expanded and liberalized through the years, underlies the contempt conviction on which John Lewis faces the Supreme Court.

The most vitally interested New Yorker, when the Clermont proved its worth — aside perhaps from Fulton himself—was Robert R. Livingston, justice of the state Supreme Court, member of three provincial Congresses, delegate to two Continental Congresses, member of the committee that drafted the Declaration of Independence, the man who swore George Washington into office for his first term as President, and—with James Monroe—the man who negotiated the purchase of the Louisiana Territory from Napoleon.

Livingston early had foreseen the importance of steam propulsion for ships. He had sat in with Fulton on the Seine experiments. Since 1798 he had possessed an exclusive grant from New York of the right to navigate steamboats on New York waters. The Clermont was named for the town in which he was born and later died.

Livingston was a great statesman, an eminent judge, a canny business man—and a good Republican. What, then, more natural than that the Republican legislature of New York should grant to him and Fulton, their heirs and assigns, a new and now valuable franchise for exclusive operation of steamboats in the state's waters? Louisiana followed suit.

Balkanization

Then New Jersey, Connecticut and Ohio forbade New York licensed steamships to enter their waters. Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Georgia granted exclusive franchises to others, which effectively barred Livingston-Fulton craft from their ports.

The infant United States was well on its way to Balkanization—to creation of a chain of exclusive permits that would have utterly stymied interstate commerce by steamboat. And when steam railroads were established a few years later, the same exclusive franchise system presumably would have been extended to them. The United States that we know could not possibly have developed under such a setup.

Aaron Ogden, former governor of New Jersey, and Captain Thomas Gibbons, tried to buck the monopoly with a line from Elizabethport to New York, but Ogden capitulated when he met up with a New York court injunction. He took a license from Livingston and Fulton. But Gibbons was made of sterner stuff. He declined to operate under anybody's license, and set up a rival line to Ogden's.

So, as it happened, it was Gibbons' ex-partner, Ogden, rather than the New York monopolists, who hailed him into court and got an injunction against him that reached the Supreme Court in 1822.

Daniel Webster argued the case for Gibbons two years later. Webster always rated his argument in the steamship case the top forensic effort of his career.

The story goes that the evening before he was to argue on behalf of Gibbons against the New York injunction, Webster took some medicine and slept until ten o'clock. Then he had himself awakened and for 11 straight hours he labored intensively through the night, preparing for his effort. At nine o'clock he sent for a barber to shave him, and some tea and crackers for breakfast. He checked his papers carefully to make sure that all were there and in order. Then he read the morning newspapers for relaxation and entertainment, and went to court.

Chief Justice Marshall, then 69, still was presiding. A conservative man, he still made his notes with a quill. He had no more use than Webster for that "barbarous abomination," the steel pen.

As court opened that day Chief Justice Marshall nibbed his quill, looked around to see that everybody was in place and everything in order, pulled up the sleeves of his gown, and nodded to Webster as if to say: "I'm ready. Now you may go on."

For two hours and a half Webster poured forth a great courtroom argument. It laid the cornerstone for the United States as a nation, rather than as a loose confederation.

The Court's decision was delayed because Marshall dislocated his shoulder in a fall so that he could not write. Justice Story helped him prepare the opinion. But Marshall read it himself. For three-quarters of an hour lawyers and spectators crowded informally around the bench, straining their ears to hear the aging justice's feeble tones.

The decision was for Gibbons and Webster—and against state monopolies. The opinion leaned so heavily upon Webster's argument that the latter later quoted Marshall as telling him it was "little else than a recital of your argument."

And it was popular. So popular that, for a time, it made the Federalist Marshall almost a hero in that ardently Republican generation. Every time a steamboat from one state docked in a port of another state it would be met by crowds, with bands and loud huzzas, speeches, gun salutes and demonstrations of great joy.

The aging Thomas Jefferson was horrified. He, more than anybody else, seemed to comprehend the decision's implications, and he hated them.

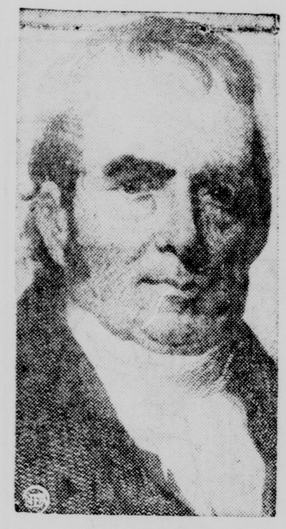

Saw Usurpation

He saw the central government usurping all the rights of the states and consolidating in itself all powers, foreign and domestic. If the Supreme Court was correct, he could see no limit to this evolution.

Upon the foundation of the decision in the Steamboat Case, the federal government can control the hours that an elevator operator can work in an office building even if neither the operator, or the owner, or any stick or stone or nail or bit of hardware in the building ever was near a state line.

The Steamboat Decision began paving the way for Boulder Dam, for the Pure Food and Drug Act, for the Mann Act, for FBI intervention in kidnaping cases, for the activities of the Federal Trade Commission, for the Wages and Hours law. Because of it, the federal government could kill little pigs, could punish a farmer for raising corn to feed pigs to slaughter at home to provide meat for the family table.

This development evolved through a long line of interpretive decisions by the Supreme Court. One, which almost rates membership in the first dozen historic decisions, was that in 1905 in which the Court held that Chief Justice Marshall: A recital of Webster's argument.

Swift and Co., was engaged in interstate commerce.

The interstate character of a big packer's business seems as unquestionable now, just as in a few years, it will seem that the big insurance companies are interstate operators. But in order to establish the principle 42 years ago the Court, speaking through Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, had to concoct a seemingly novel theory that there as a "current of commerce." This current is continuous. Anything that interferes with any aspect of it interferes with interstate commerce.

But even then the Court sought to distinguish between "direct" and "indirect" interference. That is why the Labor Board Cases, rather than the Swift case, has been selected as the climaxing decision, up to this point, in the enlargement of the federal Commerce power. By dropping the argumentative line between "direct" and "indirect" interferences, and concentrating upon the actuality of the interference, and its scope, manufacture was brought under the Commerce Clause.

In the Labor Board Cases, in 1937, Chief Justice Hughes announced that Congress has complete power to protect interstate commerce from "any dangers which threaten it," regardless of their source.

If, then, a charwoman strike in an office building might interfere with the efficiency of a clerk, employed by a firm that bought or sold something that crossed a state line or made from materials handled interstate — Uncle Sam can step in, because the current of interstate commerce has been threatened.

"Switch In Time"

If your wish-pond dam in a tiny rivulet might slow down the trickle of water into a brook that helps to feed a secondary tributary to a river that, at its mouth, is navigable, Uncle Sam is entitled to control.

The corn that you raise to feed the porker for your family table might have been purchased, if you had not raised it, from a miller who gets his supply across state lines. Or, if you hadn't raised the pigs at all, you would have gone to the store and bought pork—or a substitute meat—fed on Iowa corn and slaughtered in Chicago or Kansas City. So by raising that corn you are threatening the current interstate commerce.

These are not imaginary illustrations of the event forseen by Jefferson and provided by time. They are only simplifications of actual decisions that stem out of the Steamboat Case with a bow to Swift and Co., and to the Labor Board Cases.

There actually were five Labor Board Cases. Jones and Laughlin, the Associated Press, the Fruehauf Trailer Co., Friedman-Marks Clothing Co., and the Washington Coach (bus) Co., all had been found guilty, by the NLRB, of discharging employes for union activity in defiance of the Wagner Act.

All challenged the applicability of the act to their business. The cases were heard simultaneously. The Court sustained the Wagner Act and the NLRB in all of them. The opinion, explaining the Court's reasoning, was in NLRB vs. Jones and Laughlin.

These cases rate high among those that have made American history. This was expressed wittily by Thomas Reed Powell of Harvard when he paraphrased:

"A switch in time saves nine."

In effect, if not deliberately, the Supreme Court had to set up a barrier against New Deal legislation. Thereby it had created such public resentment that President Roosevelt proposed to "pack" the court. His plan might well go through.

If Roosevelt had succeeded in controlling Supreme Court attitude toward Congressional legislation by "packing" it, the entire scheme of government based upon Supreme Court review would have been discarded. A structure that had been unchallenged, for all practical purposes, since Marbury v. Madison, would have collapsed. A new principle would have been established that Congress and the President could do as they pleased, and if the Constitution intervened, by packing the Supreme Court the Constitution could be ignored.

The Labor Board Cases decisions contributed greatly to killing the "court-packing" scheme. They left the Court in at least superficial possession of its traditional powers. They encouraged belief that we can operate an atomic age Great Power under a Constitution designed for the age of the flint-lock musket.

S-C Tigers Win 52 to 20 At Windsor

Sedalians Hopped In Lead Easily And Held to it

The Smith-Cotton Tigers defeated the Windsor cagers at Windsor Tuesday night by a score of 52 to 20. The "B" team of Smith-Cotton also won their game by a score of 40 to 36.

The game proved to be another one of the Tigers nights of excellent ball handling. They took the lead from the first and Windsor just didn't have what it takes to catch up.

Every player on the Tiger squad had an opportunity to get into the game and display his talents. During the first quarter neither team scored too many points, Sedalia accounted for seven and Windsor settled with five. The second quarter showed that both teams were beginning to loosen up. Sedalia earned sixteen points during this part of the game and Windsor tallied six. Third stanza rolled around and Smith-Cotton rolled by with eleven more points while Windsor settled back with four. In the final quarter the Sedalia boys went point happy and made eighteen points. Windsor collected five.

The "B" team game was very close, Sedalia winning only with a four point margin. The two teams seemed evenly matched, and both displayed promise of improvement.

Thomas and Egbert shared high point honors with eleven points each. For Windsor, McMillan their center carried honors with eight.

Many States Act on Athletic Gamblers

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—An eruption of legislative bills against the attempts of professional gamblers to rig sporting events has taken place in numerous law-making bodies throughout the nation.

In Albany, a resolution was brought before the legislature yesterday calling for a full investigation into gambling, fixing of games and other unscrupulous practices in both amateur and professional sports.

The New Jersey legislature received a bill that would impose severe penalties on anyone convicted of bribing players to throw athletic games.

Similar legislation has been presented in at least a half dozen other states, a survey by the Associated Press disclosed.

The survey showed that Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Rhode Island, Indiana, Ohio, Virginia and Florida have been asked to pass anti-bribe laws similar to those already in effect in Illinois, Michigan, California, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

The new bills are aftermaths of the case involving Alvin J. Paris, convicted of attempting to fix the National Football League championship game between the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants December 15. Paris faces a maximum penalty of ten years in prison and a $20,000 fine. He will be sentenced Jan. 28.

Babe Ruth Feeling His Old Self Again

NEW YORK, Jan. 15— (AP) — Babe Ruth is up and around and greeting everyone with his characteristic "Hiya Kid," and that, says his daughter, is evidence that he is feeling his old self again.

The former home run king drew his second walk in as many days at French hospital yesterday. The hospital listed his condition as "good" and it was apparent he was fast recovering from a neck operation performed Jan. 6.

His daughter, Mrs. Julia Flanders said "personally, I believe those thousands of letters and telegrams Dad received from all over the country and even one from Australia, particularly from kids, is as important as his excellent medical care."

Angel Beats Newman; And Becker Wins

Becker To Meet The Angel Here Tuesday Night

The Swedish Angel, Tuesday night, got through with his famous neck twist to win the first fall in the main event on the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, wrestling card from Lou Newman of Los Angeles. But it took two more periods before the Angel could win the winning fall. The card as a whole was what local fans had been waiting for the past several weeks.

George Becker, young wrestler who recently invaded the mid-west after a tour of the West Coast where he grabbed a title, came through to beat "Bad Boy" Brown of Polo, Mo., two straight falls. However at the end of the second fall, Brown and Becker tangled in Brown's dressing room when the Missourian made a verbal attack on the young man from California.

Ray Schwarz, Brooklyn, beat Gene Bowman of Des Moines, Ia., winning the match with a full leg nelson. It took Schwarz 15 minutes and 36 seconds to beat the Iowan. The match received much applause from the fans.

The Angel's first fall was won in 11 minutes and 20 seconds. Newman came back and surprised the "big brute" with a series of flying tackles which confused the Angel, and the fall was won in three minutes and 15 seconds; The Angel succeeded in whipping Newman down in the third fall period and with body slams won in six minutes and 45 seconds.

Becker, a newcomer here, used a series of flying tackles and body slams to beat Brown for the first fall in 11 minutes and 10 seconds, and for the third fall he used a new shoulder pinning hold called the jackknife to win in 15 minutes and 11 seconds.

Becker by winning will be advanced to the main event to meet the Angel, next week, while in the semi-windup Newman will clash with Schwarz; and in the opener Jim Parker, recently wrestling in Montana comes back to meet "Bad Boy" Brown.

Ice Manufacturers Meet January 16-17

The twenty-second annual convention of the Missouri Ice Manufacturers Association will be held in Kansas City on January 16-17 at the Hotel Continental.

About 200 members of the Ice Industry in Missouri will attend this annual gathering.

Many of the prominent speakers of the industry are on the program.

Bam at Best

People are inclined to remember athletes as they were in the twilight of their careers, Babe Ruth, a balloon on toothpicks, for example. The Bambino was perfectly proportioned, however, when he joined the New York Yankees in 1920 at 25. The old home run king is recuperating at New York's French Hospital following a serious neck operation.

Tigers Cling to 3-0 Record in Big Six Loop

By Skipper Patrick

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 15—(AP)—It's now Missouri versus the field for the Big Six conference's 1947 basketball title with Coach Wilbur Stalcup's Tigers clinching to a 3-0 record in loop play.

Missouri got over a high hump in their campaign last night by outlasting Kansas State college 43-42 in an overtime game at Manhattan, Kas., while the surprising Nebraska Cornhuskers slipped into the runner-up slot in thumping the wilting Kansas Jayhawks 48-46 in a wild game at Lincoln, Nebr.

Just how serious the Nebraskans are will be determined at Columbia, Mo., Saturday night when the Tigers will try to stretch their conference win streak to four. Coach Harry Good's Cornhuskers have succeeded in knocking off both the pre-season favorites—defending champion Kansas and Oklahoma—after losing their opener to Kansas State away from home two weeks ago.

Missouri got a stiff tussle from Kansas State. The game moved into extra time when Wildcat Jack Dean swiped a Missouri pass and dribbled in for a setup bucket to knot the count at 36-all.

The Kansas Jayhawks, who blew a 14-point lead midway of the second half in losing to Oklahoma last week, wilted against Nebraska last night after leading 29-20 at the half. A Nebraska record home crowd of 8,000 got an extra bit of entertainment with only two minutes of playing time remaining when Charlie (Hawk) Black of Kansas and the Cornhuskers' Joe Loisel exchanged blows. Spectators swarmed onto the floor, but were quickly herded back to the seats by police. Both principals in the mixup were permitted to remain in the game, but trainer Elwyn Dees suffered a black eye trying to separate the boys.

Kansas' loss just about removed the Jayhawks from any share in the championship. The general increase in efficiency of other teams, plus the illness of Jayhawk Coach Forrest C. (Phog) Allen appears too great a handicap for the habitual winning Kansas to repeat their 1946 championship.

The Oklahoma Sooners, who have lost to Nebraska and beaten Kansas, will try to strengthen their chances for the crown in a game with Kansas State at Norman, Okla., Saturday.

Social Events—Clubs

Seventy-nine members of the Country club enjoyed a game party with a "Country Store" background Tuesday night at the club house.

A supper of barbequed ribs was served at small tables with red and white checked tablecloths and centered with candles.

Members made up their own tables and played games of their choice with the winners picking their awards from an old-fashioned grocery store counter on which were piled items found in a grocery store. Signs about the room were similar to those found in such a store, with prices for various articles quoted on cards in large and bright letters and numbers.

On the mirror was a clever picture drawn by Mrs. H. J. Heerman, of a woman customer in a grocery store holding a box of soap flakes she had just picked up from a table on which there was a sign: "One to a customer." The woman, who evidently had made a previous purchase of soap-flakes, in this time of hard-to-get items, was wearing a mask to hide her identity.

The Priscilla club will have a 1:00 o'clock covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. Clara Schien, 219 West Seventh street, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vannoy, of Green Ridge, entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Vannoy, who were recently married.

The evening was spent visiting and the musical entertainment was furnished by the Galloway brothers and Wallace Bullard.

Refreshments were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neuels, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. George Speihert, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Easter, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Easter and son, Wilbur, Eugene Johnson, Le Roy and Chester Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Galloway and children, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vannoy and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Smith and son, Billy, and Mrs. Frank Reiter, Winona, Daniel and Robert.

Those invited but unable to attend were: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray and children, Mrs. Mattie Clevenger, Mr. and Mrs. Benny Clevenger, Mrs. Ross Neuels, Mrs. Minnie Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lu Stoats.

Mrs. Bert Wells, 1520 South Osage avenue, was the guest of honor at a turkey dinner on her seventieth birthday anniversary, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Kuhn, Arrow Rock, Mo., Sunday. William Pollock, who was celebrating his birthday, was also a guest of honor.

The dining room was beautifully decorated in pink and green. On the lace covered table was a birthday cake decorated with pink and green rose buds and "Happy Birthday to Mother and Bill" inscribed on it. "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. Wells by her great granddaughters, Sandra Lyn and Harriet Harmon and her grandson, Buddie Auer.

Children of Mrs. Wells, who were present at the dinner, were, Lt. and Mrs. William Pollock, San Antonio, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kesinger, Bethel, Kas.; Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Auer and son, Buddie, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wells, Jr., Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Robeson Kella, Blackwater; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Elsie Jones of Kansas City; and three grand daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Harmon and daughters of Columbia; Miss Irene Kuhn and Miss Mildred Kuhn of Kansas City. Two children who were not present were, Mrs. Harry Eichelberger of Bunceton and E. L. Wells, Sedalia. The Rev. Ray Blanhard of Fayette was also a guest.

Mrs. R. E. Kirchner of Syracuse entertained with a miscellaneous shower Thursday evening in her home in honor of Miss Marjorie Putnam who became the bride of Mr. Elmer Ehlers of Sedalia, Sunday.

Games were played during the evening and the awards were won by Mrs. C. E. Cordry and Mrs. George Peoples.

The honoree was presented with her gifts by Sandra and Linda Brewer who pulled them into the room on a sled covered with white crepe paper.

Refreshments weree served to the following guests: Mrs. C. J. Neitzert, Mrs. A. M. Smith, Mrs. Lewis Smith, Mrs. Ray Burns, Mrs. Lester Palmer, Mrs. Harry Fowler, Mrs. George Peoples, Mrs. Otto Carver, Mrs. M. C. Ballenger, Mrs. Arthur Rohrback, Mrs. M. T. Keevil, Mrs. O. E. Cordry, Mrs. Herbert Brauer, Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. Emmett Brauer, Miss June Zimmerschied, Mrs. Frank Kirchner, Mrs. B. A. Bridges, Mr. Kirchner, Herbert Brauer, Otto Carver and several children.

Mrs. Lynn Shelby and Mrs. Paul L. Edwards entertained Saturday afternoon at the latter's home, 1310 West Sixteenth street, with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Charles Jolly, who, until her recent marriage, was Miss Mildred Mosier.

Bridge was enjoyed during the afternoon with awards going to Mrs. Jack Ridgeway and Mrs. Carl Ballinger.

The bride received many lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses to the following guests: Mrs. Jolly, Mrs. Jack Ridgeway, Mrs. Carl Ballinger of Des Moines, Ia., Mrs. C. R. Kilbury, Mrs. James Jolly, Mrs. Dare Whitaker, Mrs. Paul Schultz, Mrs. James Blue, Mrs. Larry Blatterman and Mrs. James Dickman.

Mrs. Karl Wimer was hostess to the first meeting of the LaMonte Garden club for 1947. Mrs. Wimer, the new president, presided. Mrs. Ida King read the minutes of the last meeting, the secretary, Mrs. Paul Moore, being absent. Twelve members answered the roll call. Mrs. Oliver Agee was a guest. After the business meeting was completed, the president turned the meeting over to the leader, Mrs. John Rhodes. Mrs. Lowell Reavis read an appropriate poem entitled "What Kind of a Member Are You?"

Mrs. De Fram told of the history and care of the African violet and suggestions for drying flowers.

Mrs. Rhodes presented some interesting facts about the chestnut tree and read the poem by Longfellow, "Under a Spreading Chestnut Tree."

Mrs. Rhodes, assisted by Mrs. De Fram, gave a unique demonstration on making candle flowers for the luncheon.

The meeting adjourned with plans for another session in February at the home of Mrs. De Fram.

The Doctor Says

Pregnant Women Need Dental Care

By William A. O'Brien, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Women formerly lost many teeth in bearing children, a consequence resulting not from the baby's taking calcium from the mother's teeth, but from the mother's failure to obtain dental service during pregnancy. Modern women make regular trips to the dentist during pregnancy and thus save their teeth.

As soon as a women discovers that she is pregnant, she should consult a dentist as well as a physician. If cavities are found in her teeth, they should be repaired at once.

Gum trouble develops during pregnancy due to neglect of oral hygiene or to deficiency of vitamin C (ascorbic acid) in the diet.

Mouth care in pregnancy should include thorough brushing of the teeth and gums morning and night. Secure a firm toothbrush, preferably one with two rows of bristles and brush the teeth from the gum margin down to the biting surface.

Most pregnant women are in the habit of taking their orange or tomato juice in the morning. But if it is omitted because of an upset stomach, it should be taken later in the day.

Pregnant women's gums become swollen and inflamed due to lack of adequate daily amount of vitamin C. If this deficiency cannot be made up in the diet, the physician can prescribe ascorbic acid in another form.

What about extra calcium for pregnant women? Physicians often give calcium during pregnancy to check possible deficiencies, but there is no proof that dental decay results from deficiency of calcium.

Won't Harm Infant

To be safe, pregnant and nursing women should consume a quart of good quality pasteurized milk, or its equivalent in prepared dishes, each day. Other sources of calcium are cheese, beans, broccoli, peas, cauliflower and green leafy vegetables.

The old idea that mothers had to lose at least a tooth with every baby is no longer held, for dental care in the prenatal period saves teeth. Ordinary dental care in pregnancy does not harm the mother or infant.

Expectant mothers should eat a well balanced general diet containing a slight excess of protein foods. This will help the baby to secure all the materials he needs for the development of his teeth before birth.

QUESTION: I am troubled greatly with gas. Might it press on my heart and stop the beating?

ANSWER: No. In all cases in which gas has been blamed for heart trouble, the heart, not the stomach, has been found to be diseased.

Gather Ye Rosebuds

By JEANNETTE COVERT NOLAN

Copyright by J. C. Nolan; Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Dixon leaves Blakesville without having exacted a definite promise from Rose. But she has said she loves him. . . . Doubtful that Jeff's drawings for the contest have much of a chance, Sidney sends off his sketches of the Major, which are much better, to another address.

* * *

XXIV

IT was September when Jeff had his letter from contest judges.

He went home early from the bank that afternoon, and there was the contest letter, in the armadillo basket on the hall table. He threw his hat down, slipped out of his coat and carried the letter into the parlor, knowing before he opened it what the letter would say. Then he tore the envelope.

The contest committee, after careful consideration, felt that Mr. Cameron's sketches showed more than a little talent; indeed their quality was so nearly in accord with professional standards that the judges' task in rejecting them was rendered doubly hard. But the contest, of nation-wide scope, had brought in a flood of entries, some of which were even more meritorious; in the final elimination, Mr. Cameron was one of twenty young American artists awarded honorable mention.

"Honorable mention, eh?" said Jeff to himself, reading. "Well, that's just dandy." But he was not angry; he had always known it would be like this.

He went up to his room and jerked out the top drawer of his bureau and dumped its contents on his bed. Sitting down, he stared at the miscellany. Pencils, crayons, pads—junk! And now he was through with it. Tomorrow he would take it all down to the river, he would walk out on that narrow pier and throw it in.

* * *

JEFF heard somebody on the stairs and then his father's voice at the door.

"May I come in?"

"Oh, sure!" He scrambled up, tumbled the things back into the drawer, slid the drawer into the bureau, and opened the door. "Hello, Papa."

The Major came in, peering around rather uncertainly, as if it occurred to him, as to Jeff, that not in years had he invaded these surroundings. "Your mother told me you were at home. I just wanted to have a little chat with you, my boy."

"Well, that's fine," Jeff said, trying to guess what this might foreshadow.

"We don't see much of each other, Jeff."

"No, sir. Won't you sit down?"

As the Major sat bulkily on the bed, his feet dangling short of the floor, Jeff's dubiousness increased. When before, when ever, had he and Papa had a little chat?

"I've never talked to you about Mr. Thayer," Papa said. "You were favorably impressed with him?"

"With Dixon? Yes, sir. Most favorably."

"I was sorry to miss his visit, but he has written to me." The Major paused. "Marriage is a serious step, Jeff."

"Yes, I suppose so."

"I wouldn't want any of my children to make a mistake and choose an unworthy mate."

"No," Jeff said. "Especially not Rose, she's such a sweet kid."

"However, Dixon Thayer seems very well-connected in Virginia."

"Seems to have lots of money."

"Yes," the Major said, "though that is not of prime importance. Birth, breeding—those are the more important things.

Jeff nodded.

Papa continued, still casually: "Anyway, I shall provide for Rose, so that no one can ever say Mr. Thayer's money was a factor. Rose will have a dot."

"A what?" Maybe after all, the chat was not leading to Jeff's affairs. "A what, Papa?"

"A dowry."

"Oh!" Jeff was startled.

* * *

"YOU know I've never been a rich man. But in the past few months, my prospects have undergone a tremendous change for the better."

"Well," Jeff said, feeling now quite muddled, "that's good."

"Yes, it is. Vast vistas are opening to me. Horizons." The Major waved his arms and then folded them over his paunch. "I am now in the midst of some rather tedious preliminaries." The Major stopped, fidgeting. "That's why I wanted to talk to you. Chiefly." He stopped again, puffing out his mustache, making humming noises in his throat.

"Well?" Jeff said.

"Perhaps you—"

"Yes? Go on, Papa."

"Jeff." The Major coughed and thrust a finger between his collarband and his neck. "Jeff, can you lend me—umm—fifty dollars?"

Jeff stared, and then turned his eyes away from the spectacle of his father's painful embarrassment. He got up slowly and moved toward the bed.

As it happened, he did have fifty dollars, money he'd been saving, a little bit at a time, since the day he read the advertisement of the cartoon contest in the magazine. If he had won the contest, the money would have been spent for railroad fare out of Blakesville—as far as fifty dollars would take him; the rest he could have scraped up, somehow.

But now that he was staying on, in the same old groove—

He shoved aside the pillow, reached for the sock and upended it. The money fell out, some of it silver, but mostly one-dollar bills. He counted. Fifty-two dollars and seventy-five cents.

"Here, Papa."

"Just the fifty, Jeff. You keep—"

"Might as well have it all."

"No, no. I really hesitated to—"

"Oh, that's all right."

"You understand," the Major said punctiliously, "it's just a loan?"

"Sure, I understand."

Is Your Tractor Ready For Hard Work This Spring?

Who knows what kind of a Spring we will have? But no matter what kind it turns out to be you can take advantage of every good day if your tractor is in condition. A few dollars spent now for spark plugs, a spare fan belt, oil filters, and perhaps a battery recharge or an overhaul job done now while work is slack may pay tremendous dividends when Spring arrives.

'Katy' Ride and Pay Later Plan

Railroads In Drive To Increase The Travel By Train

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The drive by American railroads to hold and increase their passenger service against competing forms of transportation Tuesday led the Misosuri-Kansas-Texas railroad to announce a ride-first-and-pay-later plan.

R. J. Morfa, chairman of the "Katy" system, told newsmen that this "complete credit card system" would stand as the first such actual step taken by any railroad.

Under it. the holder of a credit card could call any "Katy" ticket office, have his tickets delivered free to his home or office, sign his dining car checks on any "Katy" diner, and receive a bill for the whole thing at the end of the month.

"We are going to offer this service on a coast-to-coast basis provided any part of the trip is made over a 'Katy' line," Morfa said.

The actual distribution of credit cards will be started in two or three weeks, Morfa added. The proposal already has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and he indicated the line had been given a green light on it.

The first cards may go to officials and employes or large corporations served by the "Katy," but Morfa said they would be available to anyone whose credit was established and in good order.

Another wrinkle of the plan will be the cashing of personal checks on the railroad for the holders of cards. Some consideration has been given to extending the proposal even further to include hotel reservations and other accommodations in "Katy" territory, but Morfa said this had merely been discussed and would come later if at all.

Appointment To Training School

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14—(AP)—The state board of training schools announced Tuesday night that Tommy L. Kubach, 28, St. Joseph has been appointed social service director at the Missouri training school for boys at Boonville.

Kubach will inaugurate a progrom designed to give inmates of all the three state training institutions social counseling, which the board hopes will do much toward making the inmates eager to become responsible citizens of the state, director Louis J. Sharp said.

Kubach, married and a father, will begin his duties at Boonville Feb. 3. His salary will be $2,400 a year. A veteran of the army air forces, Kubach received a master's degree in social welfare at the University of Missouri. He now is a visitor for the division of welfare office in St. Joseph.

Canned sweet potatoes will soon be available again in markets.
